PHILLIPS LYTLE TO HOST ENERGY SEMINAR TITLED "DISTRIBUTED ENERGY RESOURCES: HOW DID WE GET HERE & WHERE ARE WE GOING?" AT CANALSIDE OFFICE IN DOWNTOWN BUFFALO

Buffalo, N.Y. – Phillips Lytle LLP will host a seminar titled "Distributed Energy Resources: How Did We Get Here & Where Are We Going?" on Wednesday November 8th. The seminar will be held from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. at the firm's Buffalo office located at One Canalside. Following presentations on several hot energy topics, Phillips Lytle Energy Consulting Services Head of Energy and Sustainability Dennis W. Elsenbeck will moderate a panel of industry leaders.

The speakers will cover topics from microgrid to solar energy to battery storage and energy management systems. The seminar is intended to provide an in-depth interaction and discussion on the transformation of the New York energy sector and is designed for commercial energy consumers; site and project developers; economic development groups; energy management firms; energy storage companies; and alternative power supply developers.

Jill C. Anderson, executive vice president and chief commercial officer, New York Power Authority (NYPA) will provide opening remarks.

Speakers and topics include:

- David Sandbank, Director, NY-Sun, New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) – "Evolution of Value Stack"
- Paul Tyno, Strategic Advisor Energy Initiatives, Buffalo Niagara Medical Campus – "Overview of the Buffalo Niagara Medical Campus DSP REV Demonstration"
- Cameron Brooks, President, E9 Energy Insight – "A View of the Value of Distributed Energy Resources from Around the U.S."
- Paul Curran, Founder and Managing Director, BQ Energy – "Perspectives from the Solar Development Community"
